Of New Pope Excites the Ecclesiastical World

Dead Pontiff Lying in State in St. Peter's

Rome, August 21.—Among the so-called political cardinals, headed by Cardinal Agnelli, a movement is made way to have the Sacred College of Cardinals address the emperor, kings and presidents of the countries engaged in war, asking them to declare a truce while the new Pontiff is being elected. This plan, as well as the proposition to attempt mediation, provides for the assistance of the United States as the greatest neutral power.

Cardinal Merry Del Val, papal secretary of state, today delivered into the hands of Cardinal Del Isidro Vidal the whole machinery of the Catholic church, giving him at the same time a detailed report of all business. With Cardinal Merry Del Val there are at the other high officials and heads of departments at the Holy See, who the next Pope may reappoint, if he's desired.

The greatest efforts are being made by the cardinals here to prevent the conclave's presenting a spectacle of schism among the foreign cardinals on account of the conflict now waging throughout Europe. If such a breach should occur it is expected that the foreign cardinals would form a group as follows:

The seven from France, five from Spain, two each from England and Portugal and one each from Ireland, Belgium and Canada, form a total of nine men.

The two German and six Austro-Hungarians make another group of eight.

The neutral group is composed of three Americans and one each from Brazil and Holland, forming a total of five.

The Italian cardinals, numbering 33, stand separately.

The whole Sacred College numbers 65 cardinals, so that the next Pope needs 42 votes to be elected. The Italians alone, or with the five neutrals are therefore insufficient, while any attempt to join the German or Anglo-French group would cause other splits. Thus it appears likely the choice will fall upon an Italian.

Body Taken To St. Peter's.

Rome, Italy, Aug. 21.—Born by red uniformed members of the Sediale, who when he was alive, carried him in the Sedan Chair, the body of Pope Pius X., dressed in pontifical robes and with the other emblems of his sacred office lying beside it, was taken today to the chapel of the Blessed Sacrament in St. Peter's, where the solemn rites of absolution were performed.

Thousands of persons wove themselves into the great procession from throne room to the chapel. The procession was headed by the bearer of a massive silver cross and twenty cardinals, priests and papal and court chamberlains and members of the Swiss noble and Palatine guards in their multi-colored uniforms. The scene was an impressive one. Under the glare of the candles in the chapel could be seen the tear-dimmed eyes of prelates, priests, laymen and papal guard. Especially affected were the bearers of the body of the Pope.

The burial will be private. This was decided upon today.

Body of Pope Embalmed.

The body was embalmed today prior to its removal to the chapel for the ceremony of absolution. Instead of the antiquated methods of removing the viscera and preparing it in a vase in the church of St. Vincent near the original, a fluid which it is claimed will preserve the body perfectly was injected into the arteries.

1852 NO WAR PRICES AT HUNT'S 1914

There will be no higher prices here, notwithstanding the advance on all foreign goods and on all domestic lines dependant in any part of their manufacture on a foreign product, as yarns, dyes, etc., used in weaving. We will protect our customers to the total elimination of all unexpected profit to ourselves, refusing absolutely to advance prices on any merchandise in stock. Of course some food lines have soared. Nevertheless let us meet conditions courageously, with the realization no matter what temporary inconveniences we face, it is our purse not our hearts that suffer. Peace sheds her benign rays on us, while war's tragic avalanche destroys the flower of Europe's manhood. To our fellow beings whose woes so far outnumber ours, let us give sympathy in such generous measure, none will remain for self repining.

Fifty two years ago this house went through a war crisis whose smallest event was more directly significant to us than Europe's battles in all their ramifications.

From that stupendous cataclysm we emerged stronger and better, therefore while our profoundest sympathy envelops Europe's sombre situation, hope springs eternal for Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean.

Let us bear our burdens cheerfully as they are infinitesimal, comparatively speaking. We should accept today as an American opportunity and not as a devastation.

A NEW WAY TO STOP WAR.

Among the many novel propositions to put a stop to the present "little scrap in Europe" is the following:

"Chicago Examiner:

"I am willing to act on your proposed committee to use what influence may be possible toward ending this great European war, which I believe cannot be done by tongue or pen, but only by gunpowder."

I should be glad to co-operate with the committee in conducting negotiations with any of the belligerents for blowing up the warships of the enemies by means of a very swift semi-submarine torpedo boat of my invention, costing not more than a hundred thousand dollars, a dozen of which could be built in three months and one of which would be capable of running through the zone of fire of any fighting ship in the world and sinking it, or I should be willing to finance the building of these boats myself under guarantees of any government that I should be paid 10 per cent. of the value of all warships destroyed by the torpedo boats made under my inventions. In this way the length of the cruel war might be materially lessened.

"HUDSON MAXIM,
Inventor of Smokeless Powder, Hopatcong, N. J."

IMPROVED FINANCIAL CONDITIONS.

The clearings all over the country are increasing. Buyers from every section are in New York seeking goods for the fall trade, buying American goods as substitutes for foreign orders that cannot now be filled.

The issue of the new emergency currency seems to have stilled apprehension, even in the minds of panic-stricken New Yorkers, and the bank statement last week showed a marked reaction toward confidence.

Monday, in New York, it was noted that the savings bank depositors were withdrawing their notice of withdrawal sixty days hence. Before the sixty days are up most of these notices will be cancelled and the withdrawals will fall to a normal basis.

A better tone to foreign exchange is also noted, with rates reasonable. There were many grain bills offered against contracts, which showed that the foreign buyers were willing to assume the war risks. This is due to the growing conviction that the ocean has practically been opened to the commerce of neutral nations.—Louisville Post.

THE POTATO THE STANDARD PRODUCT.

No matter what the price of meats, flour or other things that enter into the cost of living may be this fall and winter, one thing the people are assured of is that potatoes will remain at a reasonable price. The crop of potatoes in New England will be one of the largest ever produced and the quality is of the best. Already the local farmers and men who raise potatoes have begun digging them out of the ground. With one of the worst European wars in history staring us in the face and with the price of foodstuffs steadily increasing, we people here in New England have a whole lot to be thankful for in the good potato crop. Manchester (Conn.) Herald.

China must feel delighted, as Teddy would say, to learn that Japan is going to war to preserve her territorial integrity. The wolf is getting unusually kind toward the lamb.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

AUGUSTUS E. WILLSON, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR.

The Republicans of Kentucky at their Primary on August 1st selected their candidate for U. S. Senator. They chose a man who is known and respected by all of the people of the State, irrespective of party; a man who is scholarly, eloquent and true, who was elected to the highest office in the State and discharged the duties of that office without fear or favor and retired with the approval of "well done."

He is a man upon whom all can unite, and who will heal what division and dissension there has been in the party for the past three or four years, so that we will present a solid front and march to victory in November. He is a man to whom we can point with pride and who, if elected, will uphold the prestige and honor of Old Kentucky in the United States Senate.

We feel that the Republicans made no mistake when they selected Augustus E. Willson as their standard bearer.—Vanderburg Sun.

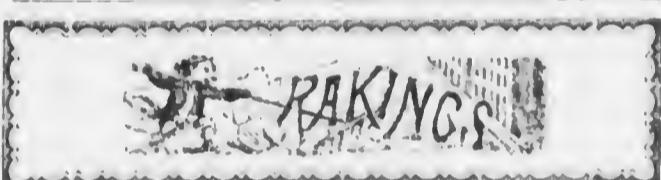

Everywhere there are expressions of gratitude to the Wilson administration for the prompt and sympathetic action taken for the relief of American travelers in Europe. There has been no hesitation. Every department has been brought into service and Congress has voted money to aid those who may be without means. No government official has been heard complaining that he could do nothing on account of the absence of law. Ways and means have been found to give aid to the people.—Des Moines Capital.

Jabs for Women!

Alfred he was hence.

Yet home he was so nervous.

Hassock when wifey passed.

Calm and smiling, Piggelsby Wissip stood against the slab of wood in Burton & Horney's side show and never moved a muscle while the gleaming daggers thrown by Pupp the Marvelous Marksman cut their way through the air and buried their points a half-inch from his body.

"Gee, maybe that guy ain't got nerve!" remarked a college professor who had dropped in to see what he had bought a ticket for.

"His nerve surpasses credulity!" whispered an awe-struck messenger boy.

And as the throwing ceased and Piggelsby Wissip stepped aside to show his form attained in diggers against the wall the crowd cheered lustily and Piggelsby was forced to bow again and again.

Later that afternoon the human target stood watching his wife pinning on her hat.

And for the next half hour he was so nervous thinking about it that he could hardly eat his supper. Louisville Times.

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Maysville People Learn the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first; But if you find 'tis from the kidney; That serious kidney troubles may follow; That dropsy or Bright's disease may, be the fatal end.

You will be glad to know the following experience:

"Tis the statement of a Maysville citizen.

Mrs. Della Lumsford, 328 E. Front St., Maysville, Ky., says: "I attributed kidney trouble to a strain. I had sharp shooting pains through my kidneys and a dragging down feeling through my hips. I had dull headache and dizzy spells and often if I had not caught hold of something for support, I would have fallen. I was in that condition for several years, up one week and in bed the next. I finally began to notice symptoms of dropsy and in a short time I was suffering from that trouble. My feet began to swell and my hands were always the same way. At night I was restless and always felt tired. I read of a similar case being cured by Doctor's Kidney Pills and I got a supply. Before long I was completely and permanently cured. Doctor's Kidney Pills say'd my life. I am glad to confirm my former endorsement of this remedy."

Price 50¢, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doctor's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Lumsford had. Foster Milburn Co., Prop., Buffalo, N. Y.

NELLIE, THE BEAUTIFUL CLOAK MODEL

A Political Application of a Well Known Little Story With a Meaning of Its Own.

Most of our statesmen are too serious, but Representative Kahn, born in Kappelheim, Germany, is one Congressman who sees the humorous side of political life. On a recent hot afternoon in the House of Representatives, Mr. Kahn said:

"The Democratic Party has constantly assured the manufacturers and business men of this country that there was nothing to fear from the legislation proposed by the members of that party. No doubt the manufacturers and producers for a time believed the statements that emanated from the lips of the distinguished gentlemen on the other side of the aisle and from the gentlemen who heads the executive department of the Government. They have had an awakening."

"The New York Sun published a bit of item several months ago which exactly pictures the condition of the business world today. It is as follows:

Kind Words Can Never Die.

To the Editor of the Sun:

"Sir: The kind words from the administration to the business interests of the country remind me of the thrilling melodrama entitled 'Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model.'

"In the early part of the play the villain pushed Nellie off the Brooklyn Bridge. Later still, he threw her under a descending elevator. The next time they met, he said, 'Nellie, why do you fear me?' "

"The business interests of the country have grown afraid of the legislation that was threatened and then enacted by the Democratic majority."

PRICE OF METALS

TAKES BIG JUMP

Tim Up to 65 Cents—Antimony, Radium, Ores and Arsenic Affected.

Washington, Aug. 29.—How the European war is causing an increase in the prices of certain metals and affecting the production of others is told by the Geological Survey. The war has raised the New York price of tin to sixty-five cents a pound. In July tin sold as low as 40.5 cents a pound. The rise in price is attributed to insecurity of ocean freights, which are carried largely in English and German bottoms.

Antimony, ordinarily one of the cheaper metals, has reached more than twenty cents a pound, a price higher than that of aluminum. This is due to the fact that practically all of the metal used in the United States is imported from European smelters. So long as the war exists, and especially so long as sea traffic is disturbed, production will be curtailed and prices raised, according to the Geological Survey.

The war has closed the European market to American radium ores, and as long as it lasts will have a deleterious effect on the production of radium ores in this country.

With the greater part of white arsenic used in America coming from European countries, imports will undoubtedly be seriously diminished by the war, it is stated. The Geological Survey believes that the war opens the way for an increase in the American production.

Buck Kirby's definition of the word "pean" probably is as good as any. Buck says a "pean" is a man with an extravagant wife and a family of girls.

TOO MANY MASTER KEYS IN NEW CAPITOL

Petty Plundering Results In Order That New Locks Be Provided.

Frankfort.—Unless the cost is excessed the old capitol will be lighted by electricity from the State's own plant. The State Capitol Commission, met with Acting Governor McDermott, directed the custodian, Samuel Lykins, to inquire the cost of running a cable from the State Reformatory power plant to the old capitol.

The custodian also was directed to inquire the cost of restoring the old Senate chamber and House of Representatives for assembly halls.

New locks will be placed on all the doors of the new capitol. Master keys have become too plentiful and too indiscriminately distributed, it is said. Some small pilfering, including the removal of a desk clock from the Lieutenant Governor's office, caused the Capitol Commission to direct the custodian to attend to this.

"UNCLE BILL"

Well, Well! He Done Jumped Ove Into "Bull Moose" Lot.

(Mt. Sterling Gazette.) Hon. William F. Schoder, popularly known as "Uncle Bill," one of the Gazette's original composers and a native and for many years resident of this city has been nominated by the Progressives as their candidate for the Legislature from Sandusky county. "Uncle Bill" has been making his home in Ohio for several years, claiming Fremont as his domicile, and many reports that occasionally sit in his old home town can be taken to anything he is certainly making good in the Buckeye State. Mr. Schoder is a man of fine ability and Sandusky county could do much worse in selecting her representative in the State Legislature. Mr. Schoder's many old friends here will watch with interest the outcome in November.

MOULTON'S MUSINGS.

Hank Tamm says he can't see that there is anything the matter with prosperity. He never finds any difficulty in getting along. His wife is taking some sound nothings again this year.

It takes a darn good man to live up to his obituary poetry.

Some women may not know as much as the men, but they have generally a lot more sense.

Between the fresh air fields and the fathers who are afraid of catching cold the same people in this country have a blamed hard time keeping comfortable.

If there is any kid in this country who doesn't long to become a baseball hero, there is something the matter with him and his parents ought to have his head examined.—Franklin State Journal.

"Yes, I saw them leave."

Europe is so busy manufacturing his party rums that she has no time to manufacture anything else.

It is generally agreed that press can soon make the toughest reporters in the world.

It begins to look as if we should have to furnish all the battleships for the Panama parade—with the exception of the Swiss Navy, of course.

WIFE OF SENATOR JAMES WILL SAIL ON SATURDAY.

Washington.—Senator James has received a cable message from his wife saying that she will sail from Liverpool Saturday on the White Star liner Olympic. She will arrive in New York the latter part of next week.

The prosperity of the women is great but exaggerated. If a woman has as much as $250 saved up her friends say she has $10,000 invested in real estate savings.

If a girl seems attractive to you, that is an indication other men have tried to kiss her, and the probabilities are that some of them have succeeded in doing so.

HIS EVENTFUL REIGN AT ROME AS PIUS X.

Modestly Depreciated His Fitness For Such a Vast Responsibility, Accepting Only at Prelates' Most Urgent Behest.

OH, what misfortune! My poor Beppo, who so loved a comfortable chaf! Who knows the misery he will go through in Rome?" This was the lament of Mario Sarto, one of the three devout unmarried sisters of Pius X, when she heard that her brother had been chosen to succeed Leo XIII.

Mario Sarto, daughter of a peasant family, wept because Beppo, as she inaugurated unexpected reforms in Vatican and outside of it—Opposed "Worship of Music" and Decreed Ancient Chant.

called to his attention he asked, "Who was the pope that established the custom that those holding the chaf of St. Peter should eat alone?"

"Pius XIII, your holiness," was the answer.

"Well, if he decided upon that custom he was in his right," said Pope Pius X, "but as much have I to discontinue it."

POPE PIUS X.

His Reforms Stunned Italy.

One innovation of the new pope was the discarding of the closed carriage in which other pontiffs had ridden for an open one. When Pius X opened the Vatican for an exhibition of athletics at a great Catholic athletic festival Italy was astounded. Addressing the boys, the pope said: "I bless your games and athletic exercises. While they make your bodies healthy and strong, they are certainly also to have a powerful and beneficial influence on your minds." The pontiff had been used to exercise, and the close confinement of his new life harassed him.

Numerous stories have been told about the pope's objections to such always called Giuseppe Sarto, had been elevated to the pontificate over such conspicuous princes of the church as Cardinals Rampolla and Vanvitelli. And it is on record that the former patriarch of Venice did not want even cardinalship of the keys of St. Peter; indeed, before he had been elected he besought the prelates to omit him from consideration, but they then were resolved that he should hold the scepter.

The conclave had been remarkable for its indecision until Cardinal Sarto, boasting of no noble ancestry, modest and unassuming, but whose executive ability and illustrious record had been recognized by Pope Leo, was put forward and elected as the dramatic climax of the conclave in spite of his protestations that he was unfit.

For its indecision null Cardinal Sarto, boasting of no noble ancestry, modest and unassuming, but whose executive ability and illustrious record had been recognized by Pope Leo, was put forward and elected as the dramatic climax of the conclave in spite of his protestations that he was unfit.

It takes a darn good man to live up to his obituary poetry.

Washington.—Senator James has received a cable message from his wife saying that she will sail from Liverpool Saturday on the White Star liner Olympic. She will arrive in New York the latter part of next week.

enices to foreigners; visited the Vatican museum of inscription; was driven to the grotto of Lourdes, built in the gardens by his predecessor; prayed at the shrine of the Virgin in the grotto, took a short walk and usually stopped at the den of eagles that Negus Menelik of Ethiopia gave him; took a short walk, followed by his carriage; had luncheon in his private apartment of the palace, followed in the warmest weather by a sleigh, according to Roman custom; received his prelates, who apprised him of their dictions and asked his approval; omitted dinner as a rule and spent the evenings alone in his study reading the day's reports and deciding cases upon which only the pope could act; ate a light supper and retired for the night. His apartments were practically policed by the Swiss guard, which had strict orders to let none approach the chamber.

Rumors as to Pope's Health.

Rumors regarding the pope's health were circulated at frequent intervals. Some said the holy father suffered from gout and others that his heart was affected. When he had been pope seven years he had become stouter than he was when patriarch of Venice, but this might have been due to the more plethoric life he was obliged to lead. On Aug. 4, 1903, the third anniversary of his elevation, there had been two momentous questions to absorb the attention of the church and state of France and the attempt of the pontiff to establish some sort of modus vivendi with the government of Italy. On the fiftieth anniversary of his first mass emperors, kings and royalties lavished gifts upon the holy father. Women of the United Kingdom sent 362 châtelaine to Rome. Pope Pius formed a commission to revise the Latin Bible, and in January, 1909, it was said this task would take eight or ten years. In August, 1909, the pope criticised an address of Dr. Charles W. Eliot at Harvard's summer school on the "Regulation of the Future." Dr. Eliot had said the new religion would not be based upon authority, spiritual or temporal, and would admit no sacraments except "natural, lawless customs."

This P. X., having no family coat of arms, adopted parts of those of two bishops of Treviso, his friends, and preserved his arms as patriarch of Venice. His escutcheon or shield was oval, and the crest, which was exclusively his, consisted of a thorn with famous or thorns and St. Peter's keys in snuff above the chief. "It was neither an impious nor strictly ecclesiastic pope I represented on engravings," said a painter for whom Pope Pius once sat, "but rather an indulgent, plump and deeply religious pope."

A London photographer who had been asked to Rome to take the pope's likeness asked the pontiff to place himself in the attitude of pronouncing a blessing and later said: "A marvelous change came over him. The man vanished, and the pope, the great father of his people, appeared. His face wore a look of wonderful love and power. I never could have believed that any human being could become so instantly transformed."

A graphologist said of the pope's handwriting: "The large, round letters, substantial, grave, elegant and harmonious, pointed to an artistic imagination, a large, strong, simple intelligence, a great depth of thought. The signature denoted gentleness and kindness, but the flourish beneath the signature disclosed the man of action."

Pope Pius gave away large sums of money for charity, although $1,250,000 of his estimated income of $2,500,000 a year was needed for the upkeep of the Vatican.

Speaking of the election of Pope Pius X., Archbishop Logue, primate of Ireland, said at a dinner in New York city on April 30, 1908: "It was a sad sight. The cardinal selected to be our holy father did not want the office. He had lived among the poor and was accustomed to his labors."

During the first year of his pontificate Pius X. issued his "Instruction on Sacred Music." The time had come, he thought, to draw a distinction between "the worship of music" and "music for worship" and to define what sacred music should be a help to reverence, instead of a distraction. Therefore, in pursuance of his views, he especially advised the restoration of the Gregorian chant by the people, so the faithful might again take a more active part in the ecclesiastical offices, as in ancient times.

Thus himself loved music and played the organ with a degree of no mean attainment. He had a clear baritone voice, and it has been said he sometimes sang the songs of his exiled home to his sisters when they were permitted to meet him in the Vatican garden. Playing seven coins were enjoyed in the papal kitchens, the pope's aid to have asked, "Why have seven coins to make a little bread?"

The holy father preferred the plain food he had eaten in Venice to the delicacies from the larders of St. Peter's. At most of his meals he sat at a table with his secretaries.

With slight variations, this was the routine of the late pontiff: private mass at 6 o'clock breakfast; attended correspondence and receptions as the Vatican imposed upon him; but, while no doubt exaggerated in many instances, it was known that Pope Pius X. had allowed more freedom than he felt warranted in demanding or taking. He caused a stir by declining to close the celebrated Academy for Noble Ecclesiastics, which for more than three centuries had supplied the church with diplomats and cardinals and which was founded by Cardinal Imperiali for the diplomatic training of Italian nobles who wished to follow an ecclesiastical career. The object of Pope Pius was to utilize the funds required to maintain the academy in other ways for the good of the church.

CONCERN FOR PENSIONERS

Postmasters, city and rural carriers, and all other postal employees, are not allowed to deliver letters containing pension checks to soldiers until the person to whom the letter is addressed exhibits his or her pension certificate, the number of which must be identical with that on the check. The checks are mailed in what are known as window envelopes which have an opening with a transparent cover through which the address and the number on the check can be seen. Pensioners should keep this in mind and have their pension certificates where they can be readily shown for comparison.
